

STATS 205: Final Project Write-Up

Brian Liu

6/14/2019

1. Background of the data and why it is interesting or important

The data we are using is the data from WHO suicide statistics from Kaggle. This gives population-based statistics on suicide rate...

2. Explanation of the method studied and its properties

3. Data analysis or simulation study

We will use the crude rate of suicide per 100,000 people.

This analysis provides information on age-standardized rates...

After filtering countries with missing suicide rate, take a random sample of 100 countries and make sure each continent has approximately equal countries.

Filter countries by continent:

library(countrycode)
filtered_suicide_df$continent <- countrycode(sourcevar = filtered_suicide_df[, "country"],
                                             origin = "country.name", destination = "continent")
```

Warning in countrycode(sourcevar = filtered_suicide_df[, "country"], origin = "country.name", : Some ## Warning in countrycode(sourcevar = filtered_suicide_df[, "country"], origin = "country.name", : Some
head(filtered_suicide_df)

country year    sex      age suicides_no population continent
25 Albania 1987 female 15-24 years         14    289700    Europe
26 Albania 1987 female 25-34 years          4    257200    Europe
27 Albania 1987 female 35-54 years          6    278800    Europe
28 Albania 1987 female  5-14 years          0    311000    Europe
29 Albania 1987 female 55-74 years          0    144600    Europe
30 Albania 1987 female  75+ years          1     35600    Europe
```

write.csv(filtered_suicide_df, 'filtered_suicide.csv')
```

Let us find out which continents are counted:

Get list of continents
list_of_continents <- unique(filtered_suicide_df$continent); list_of_continents
```

[1] "Europe" "Americas" "Asia" "Oceania" "Africa" NA

Therefore,

$$\frac{100 \text{ countries}}{6 \text{ continents}} \approx 16 \text{ to } 17 \text{ countries per continent}$$

we should randomly sample 17 countries from each continent.

Notably, there are countries that are not on any of the listed continents. Let us see which ones those are:

not_in_a_continent = filtered_suicide_df[is.na(filtered_suicide_df$continent),] write.csv(not_in_a_continent, 'not_in_a_continent.csv')
head(not_in_a_continent)
```

```

```

32322 Rodrigues 2001 female  75+ years      0      NA      <NA>
```

unique(not_in_a_continent$country)

```
[1] Rodrigues          Virgin Islands (USA)
141 Levels: Albania Anguilla Antigua and Barbuda Argentina ... Zimbabwe

Let us make the choice not to include these countries in the analysis, since there are only two countries.

We will now create six dataframes, filtered by list of countries for each continent.
